OVERLAND ROUTE via TRIESTE.

(In direct communication with the P. and O. Co.'s Steamers to Suez.)

THE AUSTRIAN LLOYD'S MAIL STEAMERS leave Alexandria direct for Trieste weekly, immediately after the arrival of the Bombay and Calcutta Mails and Passengers from Suez. The distance between Alexandria and Trieste is 200 miles shorter than that between Alexandria and Marseilles and is much more agreeable, it being a coasting trip full of variety of beautiful scenery from the Island of Candia to the port of Trieste. The passage occupies only 4½ to 5 days and the Company employ on this line their best Steamers, built expressly for this service, and with special reference to the accommodation and comfort of Passengers, with an experienced Surgeon on board each vessel. At Trieste the traveller to England has an extensive choice of picturesque and interesting routes, occupying from 8 days 6 hours to 5 days to London at an expense varying from £7 to £13.

The railway between Trieste, Calais and Ostend, is complete throughout.

The Custom-house and Pass-port-systems have been considerably modified and need not cause any apprehension of being vexatious or troublesome.

Passengers by the P. and O. Company's Steamers to Suez can have their baggage forwarded by that Company's Steamers to Southampton at a charge of 10s. per cwt., to which the Austrian Lloyd's Agent at Suez will undertake.

The undersigned Agents are prepared to grant passage tickets for the Steamers plying between Alexandria and Trieste and for the railway between Suez and Alexandria.

Rates of passage money, including a liberal table and steward's fees from Alexandria to Trieste, first-class £15; second-class £10; children under 10 years at half fare; under 2 years free. Reduced fares for FAMILIES, consisting of not less than three persons travelling together: first-class £12 7/3 per head; second-class £8-5 per head. Railway tickets from Suez to Alexandria with all the privileges of Passengers by the P. and O. Co., first-class £7, second-class £5 10s.; children under 3 and under 10 years at half fare. For further particulars, apply to

A.-H. BUSCHKE & Co.,
Agents for the Austrian Lloyd.

Bombay, 27, Medow Street.

NOTICE.

Rampart Row, Bombay. HERBERT & Co.

NOTICE.—Owing to the extent to which the disgraceful practice has been carried, of palming off inferior, indistinct, and inartistic productions as being original Photographs, HERBERT & Co. inform their correspondents that almost all genuine portraits bear the name of the Photographer or of the Publisher on the back or the front of the picture; where such a guarantee is not to be found, the Portraits, almost without exception, are utterly spurious.

HERBERT & Co. can guarantee that every portrait sold by them is a genuine production, and they solicit an inspection of their unequalled and interesting collection of Original Portraits, both plain and exquisitely colored.

CARTES DE VISITE.

AMONGST numerous other portraits of eminent men and those celebrated for any peculiar gift or accomplishment, HERBERT & Co. here enumerate a few of those that have been just received. To prevent disappointment an early inspection is solicited.

JUDICIAL DEPARTMENT.

UNDER Section 34 of Bombay Act No. VI. of 1863, entitled "An Act for the Regulation of Public Conveyances in the Town, Suburbs, and Harbour of Bombay," it is hereby notified, for general information, that the Honorable the Governor in Council is pleased to extend the provisions of the said Act to the City, Suburbs, Camp, and Civil Station of Poona from the 1st January 1864.

All Magistrates having jurisdiction at Poona, are vested with the powers conferred by the applicable to the coins of Nos. 2 and 3. In the other coins, not already placed low down in the series, the gradual effect was apparent of the endeavour to adopt a square or rounded character to the requirements of a circular legend of small radius. The lower portions of the letter necessarily became compressed, the change becoming complete in the coins of Nos. 10, 11 and 12.

The double letter "ksha," it was remarked, as seen in the rock inscriptions, exhibits with little change the form of the letters "Ka" and "Sha." In almost all the Sah coins however the cross bar was absent. It was shown on a few, and to these for this reason, it was argued, we should be required to assign a position at the head of the series. They were found however to be those to which this position had already on other grounds been assigned:—namely Nos 1,2,3,4 and 5.

Further changes in the same letter were pointed out in the coins lower down in the series.

Under the last head of the enquiry the emblem on the reverse and other details were considered.

On the coin of No. 1 was a large sun with ten elongated rays on each of the coin's of No. 2 a smaller sun with eight rays. On one coin of No. 3 a similar sun with eight rays, and on the other coins of this king, the rays represented by 8,7,or 6 dots. The unique coin of No. 4 showed the same sun with six elongated rays, which altogether disappear with this king, and on all the other coins are replaced by a varying number of dots.

Similarly, the central symbol is on the earlier coins a large pyramid, consisting of three equal and accurately carved segments of circles gradually towards the middle of the series, the upper segment becomes elongated at the close there is a projecting point.

Changes in the wavy line below the pyramid and in the half moons were next remarked on. It was also noticed that two points were observable behind the lower border of the helmet on coins from No. 1 to 7 and on some others. The peculiarity of the use of the genitive before putrasa on the coins of No. 2, 3, 4, 5, 7 and on one coin of No. 10 was remarked on as indicating a close connection between this group, and the coins of No. 12 13,14 or 15 were brought into the most intimate relationship by the circumstance that the obverse of the coins of No. 12 show a youthful face which as well as the date observable a some of them is continued or changed on the coins of No. 3, and on three-fourths of the coins of No. 14, the remaining coins of this last monarch exhibiting an older face with the circular eye, which again is adopted without change by No. 15.

The serial arrangement deduced from all the foregoing considerations was then laid before the society together with a synopsis of the evidence on which these results were arrived.

On applying to this arrangement Mr. Bhau Daji's late discovery as to the value of the initial numeral shown on the obverse, Mr. Newton fouml it to be to the fullest extent confirmed, the numeral representing 100 being borne on the coins of the first 12 kings (No. 1 excepted, on which the numeral was not visible) while some coins of No. 13 showed the same numeral and others that denoting 200 the latter alone being found on the remaining coins down to the end of the series. The first 12 kings therefore having reigned before the commencement of the 2nd century of the era in use, and the remainder before the commencement of the 3rd it became necessary to determine which was adopted, and it was argued that this was the era of Vikramaditya, and that the entire dynasty consequently reigned from A. D. 30 or 40 to A. D. 240 or 250.

Mr. Newton's concluding remarks on the whole subject of this paper we quote in extenso as under:—

"I have already assumed the derivation of the Sah coinage from that of the Greeks. On this point there can be no doubt. But we find little in the Greek or native historians to assist us in determining whether the impulse which resulted in the establishment of the Sah empire emanated from the Bactrian or the Parthian division of the kingdom of Alexander. The Bactrian king Demetrius who must have reigned about B. C. 190, is stated by Strabo to have made conquests in India but we have no evidence that he reached Guzerat and Kattiawar, This Menander in B. C. 130, ruled in the north west of India seems certain. Mr. Prinsed has remarked that the execution of the Sah coins leads us rather to look to those of the Parthians as the originals from which they were derived, and this conviction, though not certain, may incline us to view Parthia rather than Bactria as the monarchy from which in some way, the Sah empire originated. We certainly have evidence of a connection between Parthia and Western India at a later period in the fact that a subsequent deteriorated issue from some mint in Guzerat, now known there as "Gudhija paisa, has plainly been imitated from the coins of the Sassanides. Bactria had, indeed, been subjugated by the Scythians before the date at which I would place the earliest of the Sahs, though this circumstance would furnish no decisive argument against the inference that the Sahs may have been connected with Bactria, since the Scythians had spread from thence may have been forced southward into India.

That the Parthians had power shortly before the accession of the Sahs to extend their territory in the direction of Guzerat is evident, as for the century before, and during the century following, they were the formidable antagonists of Rome. In this state of things, too, we have perhaps an explanation of the rise of a new dynasty; and of its being at a time when the tide of conquest easward and southward, as described in the Sah inscription at Girnár. The Indo Scythians had probably rendered Bactria unable to interfere, and the Parthians had sufficient occupation in their contests with Scythia and the Romans. Unless, therefore, the Indo Scythians opposed an obstacle, there appears to have been no hindrance to the rise, about the Christian era, of a native power in Guzerat.

"Mr. Prinsep, Mr. Thomas, and Professor Wilson agrees that the Sahs preceded the Guptas, and it seems clear that the Guptas preceded the Valabhi dynasty. If it were supposed that the Valabhi line intervened, it would be very difficult to explain the close resemblance of the Sha and Gupta coins. But the Valabhi era having been satisfactorily fixed at A. D. 319, there is no known impediment to the same connection of the Sahs and Guptas, unless it be proved that the Indo-Scythic rule extended to Guzerat. Those writers who have assumed or inferred that it did, have probably been unaware of the circumstance that Indo Scythic coins are never found within the limits of the Sah territories. This alone seems to furnish a sufficient reply to the arguments which have been used to prove that Guzerat was included in their empire. Within the countries which yielded to them their copper coins are found in large numbers, but I am not aware that a single coin of copper or gold of the Indo Scythic dynasty has ever been found in Guzerat, Kattiawar, or Kutch, though the discovery of one now and then would not make it less difficult to believe that they ever circulated there. The situation of Guzerat and the countries to the westward is such as to make it easily conceivable, even if the evidence of non occupation by the Indo Scythians were less conclusive, that a race invading India from the north west might be drawn aside to the eastward, and leave them unassailed, or if their favorable position overlooked, it is evidently probable that invading hordes might be prevented from extending their dominion in one direction by resistance demanding all their energies in another. In the case of the Indo Scythians we have evidence that they met with resistance on the Indus, in Central India, and in this way their failure to penetrate into Guzerat may be accounted for. But whatever may be the explanation, it seems reasonable to infer that if the Indo Scythians had ever held possession of Guzerat, their coins would be found there in considerable numbers.

"The assumption that the Indo Scythia Empire included the territory of the Sahs being thus rejected, we have an interval extending from A. D. 30 or 40 to A. D. 3 19 within which to arrange the two dynasties under consideration, it is admitted that the coinage of the Guptas immediately succeeded that of the Indo Scythians in Central and Northern India. The Scythians were probably gradually subjugated or expelled during the 1st and 2nd centuries of our era, and they and the Sahs would thus have been reigning contemporaneously.

The Guptas, again, must be held to have first invaded the dominions of the Sahs after the subjugation of the Indo Scythians and the consolidation of an empire eastward of Guzerat. This supposition obtains confirmation from the circumstance that the earliest Gupta coins found in Guzerat are those of Kumara Gupta, whom Prof. Lassen places about the 3rd century of our era, the exact time which I should have inferred for this prince, since it is evident from the type and features on his coins, that he immediately succeeded the last Sah king, whose coins bear a date corresponding to 235-242 of our era, and whose reign may be inferred to have come to an end shortly after. Skunda Gupta is the only other king of the dynasty whose coins are found in Guzerat. They, as well as Kumara Gupta's are found in such numbers, and so generally spread over the country as to leave no doubt that the rule of both kings was well established in that province, while the remarkable resemblance of the busts on the Guzerat Gupta coin (especially on some of Kumara Gupta's to those of the last Sah kings, and the use of identical emblems on their cones, now clearly established, supply weighty evidence of an immediate succession. A probable explanation of the marked difference between the character in which the legends on the two classes of coins are written, being that the Guptas on the acquisition of Guzerat, introduced on their especial coinage for that province the characters already in use on their Central India currency, though they adopted from the former the size and style of the Sah currency which it displaced.

"The Sahs, then, having reigned from the early part of our 1st century up to about the middle of the 3rd and been succeeded by at least two monarchs of the Gupta dynasty, we are brought down to the known era of the Valabhi race, A. D. 319. All arguments, hitherto considered, are in a remarkable degree favorable to the arrangement suggested, and we may derive further confirmation of it from Al Burini who states that the Valabhi line immediatelo succeeded the Guptas. At the time when this paper was commenced, I saw but one objection to the proposed order of the dynasties, and the opportune receipt of the coins figured as Nos. has now happily removed that difficulty in a manner which gives me increased confidence in this serial assignment.

The coins (of which those adverted to are, unusually well executed specimens) are, as before stated, very plentiful throughout Guzerat and Kattiawar; more plentiful, perhaps, than those of the Sahs and Guptas together. They are also, by similarity of type, very closely connected with these two series and with the former especially, as regards the character in which the legend was written, and the cluster of stars found on the unique coins depicted as Figs.——, while, however, the great falling off in art and mechanical appliances which their execution indicates, has always compelled me to assign to them a position subsequent to that of the Guptas,

"The necessary conclusion has appeared to be that the Gupta currency intervened between the Sahs and the deteriorated coinage under consideration, and that the kings who issued the latter were a native dynasty who took as their model the coins of the Sahs; a line of kings identified with the country subject to their rule, rather than those of the Central India Guptas, who were probably hated as a foreign and invading race. But between the Guptas and the Valabhi line, no interval could, on any admissible determination of the Sah era, be obtained, in which to place this dynasty. There were objections, too, to the separation of the rule of the Guptas in Western India, and the rise of the Valabhi have by any intervening dynasty, even if the dates would have permitted it. In the presence of this difficulty, the question had occurred to me whether these debased pieces might be the coinage of the powerful dynasty of Valabhi. On many grounds this seemed likely. No coin had hitherto been ascribed to that line of princes; though their power, the duration of their sway, and especially the circumstances that they succeeded the Sahs and Guptas, and consequently on the rise of their sovereignty, found a plentiful currency circulating through their dominions, combined to make it most improbable that they should have had no coinage of their own. On the other hand, these previously unread coins are found in such large numbers, and so generally dispersed over the whole of Guzerat and Kattiawar, that it seemed to me almost an inadmissible supposition that any distinct unknown line; in other words, any other line than the Valabhi, could, within the interval to which the issue of this coinage must be limited, have maintained its empire during the lengthened period necessary to account for so vast an out-turn from its mints. When to these arguments was added the evidence derivable from the coins themselves, that their issue was subsequent to that of the Sahs and of the Guptas, and that they followed the latter of these very closely, if not immediately, the inference that this was the currency of the Valabhi kings seemed almost unavoidable. Whatever was needed to add conclusive force to this reasoning, appears now to be supplied. The deciphered legend gives the title on the coins as "Bhattaraka," a word known to us as the family title of the line of Valabhi princes, from their copper-plate grants. As it is adopted by the different members of the dynasty in these grants, so it is found on all the coins of the class referred to, though the numbers discovered, as well as the progressive deterioration exhibited by them sufficiently shew that they were issued, not by a single sovereign, but by a line of kings. We may confidently, therefore, attribute this hitherto unassigned coinage to the Valabhi mints.

"This paper having already extended to too great a length, I bring it to a close with a few words on the extent of territory over which the dynasties referred to exercised authority. The Sahs must have reigned over the whole of Guzerat and Kattiawar. Their coins are found also in Kutch. In 1846, about 400 were found near Junir in the Poona districts, and, as already mentioned, coins of a few members of the dynasty are frequently found on the site of an old town about midway between Satara and Kolhapoor. The Junir hoard may prove nothing more than an irruption of the Sahs; the coins found below Satara, however, shew conclusively the existence of a city in which they must have been in circulation for many years; and both discoveries corroborate the statement in the Girnar inscription that the territories of Satakarni, the king of the South, were successfully invaded by Rudra Dama, the assumption of the Vikramaditya era, which places Rudra Dama at about A. D. 40, being also confirmed by Pl iny remark that the Andhras (one of whom must have been the Satakarni, alluded to) were at that time a powerful dynasty. I have, throughout this, spoken of the Sahs as sovereign kings: possibly they may have been tributaries to one of the Greek monarchies, or some of the earlier of the line may have been so. Of this, howeves, there seems to be no sufficient evidence, while the conquests described in the Girnar inscription, and confirmed to some extent by the discoveries of the Sah coins in the Dekkan militate against such a supposition.

"The coins of the Guptas do not appear to have been found in any part of the Presidency except Guzerat and Kattiawar. The dynasty seems to have established themselves in those territories only, on this side of India, and that only during the reigns of Kumara and Shoada

"The unique coin No. found in the southern part of the Satra district and connected in the most intimate manner by the San emblem and the location of the cluster of stars on the left of that emblem with the coins of the Sah and Gupta kings rather indicate that on the overthrow of the Sah dynasty in Saurashtra by Kumara Gupta, or more probably at a somewhat earlier date, when the Sahs were no longer able to maintain their hold on the more distant territories which they had subjugated, an attempt was made by some one distinct from both the Sah and the Gupta lines but closely connected with the former, to carry on the Government of the southern provinces which had previously owned allegiance to the Sahs.

"Of the Valabhi dynasty we have as yet found no coins beyond tne limits of Saurashtra. Of the dynasty whose currency is known Guzerat as the Guddya, two coins have been discovered amid the debris of the ancient village near Kurrar. We have evidence, perhaps, in this of another extension of territory towards the south, several centuries after the fall of the Sahs. The entire coinage, on the southern provinces which had previously owned allegiance to the Sahs.

"Of the Valabhi dynasty we have as yet found no coins beyond tne limits of Saurashtra. Of the dynasty whose currency is known Guzerat as the Guddya, two coins have been discovered amid the debris of the ancient village near Kurrar. We have evidence, perhaps, in this of another extension of territory towards the south, several centuries after the fall of the Sahs. The entire coinage, on the southern provinces which had previously owned allegiance to the Sahs, down to the time of the Guddya kings would papear from the frequency with which single specimens are found to have been very large, while the numerous hords of Saba, Gupta, Valabhi and Guddycoins which have been discovered, seem to shew that notwithstanding the power and duration of the 1st and 3rd of these dynasties, disquietude or warfare, or irruptions from without, on the fear of these, must have produced a general sense of insecurity.

"Should the conclusions stated in this paper be correct, we have an outline history of the northern part of this Presidency already sketched out from a date not long snbsequent to that of Alexander down to the end of the 6th or 7th century of our era. Passing by Chundra Gupta Maurya, the contemporary of the great Macedonian, and the Bactrian Demetrius, whose invasion of India may be conceded on the testimony of Strabo, we have grounds for admitting the influence, if not the paramount authority, in Saurashtra, of Menander, to whom Prof. Wilson assigns the date B. C. 126, and whose coins the author of the Periplus states to have been still current in Broach at the end of the first century after Christ. The Sahs must apparently have risen to power at an early in the 1st century of our era, and the last sovereign of of the line appears to have reigned about A.D. 250.

"Kumara Gupta and Skanda Gupta immediately succeeded them, and these were followed by the Valabhi dynasty whose era dating from A. D. 319 is generally admitted, and seems to be satisfactorily established. Col. Tod gives A. D. 524 as the date of the sack of Valabhi, and this evidence deducible from the coins of the dynasty, may be held to favour the conclusion that their empire continued at least some two centuries. Their dowhfall was attributed by Colonel Tod to an army of Parthians and Scythians; but Mr. Elphinstone has suggested that the invaders may have been Sassanians, probably under Naushiroan, and in this event we have doubtless an explanation of the occurrence of the Guddya coins already to. Barbarised as these are, the attempt to delineate the bust and figure of the Sassanide is evident, and it is certain, therefore, either that the Sassanian monarchy obtained a footing in Guzerat, or as is more probable, that an off-shoot of the dynasty succeeded in establishing an empire there. The time assigned to the fall of Valabhi was one when such an irruption was probable, and if the number of the debased Guddyas, which from time to time come to light may be looked on as indicative of a rule extending over a century or two, would bring us down to within a few years to the commencement or end of the 7th century of our era, and close with a race of Sassanian origin, reigning in Kutch, Kattiawar and Guzerat.

On the motion of the Honorary President, seconded by the Hon'ble the President, the best thanks of the Society were voted to the Hon'ble Mr. Justice Newton for his most valuable and interesting communication.

BOMBAY POLICE INTELLIGENCE.

FORT POLICE OFFICE.—Thursday, 29th Oct.

(Before N. W. Oliver, Esq.)

Theft.—A Madrasee named China Antone, was brought up charged with stealing one coat, and other articles of the aggregate value of thirty-two rupees, the property of Mr. James Barns. It appeared that the prisoner was a cook in the employ of the prosecutor, and was engaged in this capacity from the 24th instant. On Saturday last, the prosecutor saw the stolen property safe in his house. On the morning of the next day, he sent the prisoner to the bazar, and shortly afterwards missed the articles. A police peon named Govind Hurree stated, that on Tuesday last he apprehended the prisoner, who, when asked as to the stolen property, denied at first, but subsequently admitted having given the same to a Borah.

His Worship convicted the prisoner and sentenced him to be imprisoned for three months in the common Jail with hard labour.

Assault.—Nursey Muckon, was placed at the bar, charged with assaulting one Rustomjee Jamsetjee.

From the evidence of the prosecutor, it appeared that on the night of Wednesday last, at about half-past seven o'clock, he had been at the Modykhana street to a washerman to ask for his clothes, the prisoner was there, and he without assigning any reason abused and struck the prosecutor.

The statement of the prosecutor was materially confirmed by the testimony of one Ibrahim Mahomed.

His Worship found the prisoner guilty of the offence and sentenced him to pay a fine of Rs. 10, out of which the Magistrate ordered Rs. 5 to be paid to the complainant.

(Friday, 30th October.)

Theft.—Five Parsee youths named Shapoorjee Pestonjee, Dinshaw Pestonjee, Jalbhoy Dadabhoy, Eduljee Sorabjee and Nowrojee Biramjee, were brought up on remand, and placed at the bar, charged with theft of some gold ornaments of the value of Rs. 99. The property of one Suckoo woman.

The following additional evidence in this case was taken this day.

Mr. Nusserwanjee, appeared on behalf of the prisoners Balloo Govind Police Constable No. 74 stated, that on the 7th October instant, at about half past 9 P. M., he heard a cry proceeding from a lane at Dhobee Tallow. He ran to the spot, and there saw the prosecutix holding the first and fifth prisoners by their clothes; she said that they and others took her ornaments, and she held the two prisoners, but the others ran away. The policeman brought a lantern and searched the spot, and there he found some pieces of broken glass bangies. Witness asked the woman, to point out the other prisoners, but did not do so at that hour. Next morning she pointed out the other three prisoners, and the police peon took them into custody on a charge of theft.

Cross examined by Mr. Nusserwanjee. He knew the prosecutrix. The first and fifth prisoners had shirts and skull caps on. The prosecutrix described the ornaments of which she said she had been robbed. She was confused and therefore she could not point out the other three prisoners that night.

The last witness for the prosecutrix was a woman named Ooma. She stated that she was called here by the prosecutrix to prove on her behalf that she was in the habit of wearing the stolen ornaments. Her evidence in this respect was quite unsatisfactory. She could not state positively the day on which the robbery took place, nor could shestate with propriety as to seeing the prosecutrix with the ornaments on her person on the day of the alleged robbery.

Mr. Nusserwanjee for the prisoners stated that the case commenced on the 8th October instant. In the first place there was no evidence before the Court as to the prosecutrix, possessing any ornaments. Her own witness coolly contradicted her own evidence. He had stated distinctly that he did not see any ornaments worn by the prosecutrix on the day in question, and therefore the pleader said that the evidence of this man was trustworthy. The prosecutrix might have some grounds for proving the assault committed on her by the prisoners, but she had no locus standi to prove the charge of theft against the prisoners.

At this stage of the proceedings, his Worship said to Mr. Nusserwanjee that there was no necessity for him to go into the defence any more, as he was not satisfied with the evidence before the Court, and therefore he would not be justified in committing the prisoners for their trial at the High Court. The prisoners were accordingly discharged with a warning to attend if required.

Threatening language.—William Young, was placed at the bar, charged with using abusive and threatening language, towards Lieutenant W. R. Hayman, with intent to provoke a breach of the peace.

From the evidence of Lieutenant Hayman, the Shipping Master, it appeared that, on Thursday last, between twelve and one o'clock the prisoner came to the office, and asked him for an order to go to the sailor's home. He asked the prisoner to explain who he was and where he came from, whereupon the prisoner turned towards him and used abusive and threatening language.

One Manuel Rodrigues, a clerk in the Shipping Office, corroborated the statement of Lieutenant Hayman.

His Worship convicted the prisoner and fined him Rs. 15, and in default ordered him to be imprisoned for four weeks in the House of Correction with hard labour.

MAZAGON POLICE OFFICE.—29th Oct.

Taking forcible possession of Property.—Dr. Dallas conducted the prosecution and Mr. Cumroodeen Tyabjee appeared for the defendants.

Mahomed Jaffer bin Shaik Hyder, an alleged old retainer of the late Nawab of Mazagon, and four other Mahomedans were placed at the bar yesterday charged with having by force and violence effected an entry, and retained possession of the premises of one Nanabhoy Jamsetjee situated at Mazagon and adjoining the Nawab's tanks on the 12th September last.

From the evidence for the prosecution it appeared that Mahomed Jaffer on the day in question proceeded in company with the other four defendants to the premises of the prosecutor which was then occupied by some native bundarees. The defendants choose the time of the day to make their appearance on the premises when all the males were away at their work; the huts being occupied by only women and children. Mahomed Jaffer armed with a hatchet proceeded in the first instance to break open the door, and then all the defendants rushed in and the work of demolition went on with a degree of violence, which the counsel for the prosecution characterized as most ruffianly and unmanly. The defendants threw out every thing that belonged to the inmates of the huts, tore down the tatty walls and flung them into the road, killed some of their poultry with the violence with which they were thrown out of doors, and in their reckless and unmanly violence absolutely cut down the cradle of an infant who was asleep in it, and which was suspended from one of the beams of the hut. Although a large crowd was attracted to the spot by such unusual violence upon women in open day, yet it appeared that no one interfered, and the husbands of the women found their wives on their return from work seated on the debris of their household goods and chattels weeping most piteously. The prosecution went on to show that Nanabhoy Jamsetjee became possessed of the property from which his tenants were so forcibly ejected by Mahomed Jaffer and his colleagues, by legal purchase at a Sherriff's sale about three years ago, in which possession, his title was subsequently upheld by the High Court of Bombay in giving their decision in favor of the prosecutor in a suit which was instituted by Nanabhoy Jamsetjee in that Court against certain individuals who had illegally become possessed of those premises.

It was urged on behalf of the defendants that the premises taken possession of by Mahomed Jaffer was originally the property of the old Nawab of Mazagon who had dedicated it to charitable purposes, and that the Sheriff's sale of that property was invalid, and hence the prosecutor became possessed of the premises illegally. That the Nawab of Mazagon was dead, and no male descendent was alive to superintend the affairs of the other living members of that Nawab's family; hence the first defendant, Mahomed Jaffer bin Shaik Hyder, who was the oldest retainer of the late Nawab was looked upon as the present trustee and superintendent of the rights of the female members of the family of his late master; and knowing full well that the old Nawab of Mazagon was illegally dispossesed of the property sold at the Sheriff's sale, and of which the prosecutor became the purchaser, and having the rights and interests of the females of the late Nawab at heart, he had adopted the method of restitution of those rights by taking possession of the premises in question from the tenants of the prosecutor; in which neither violence nor force was used in obtaining that posession.

The witnesses, however, for the prosecution fully establish that force and violence was used by the defendant Mahomed Jaffer bin Shaik Hyder when he took possession of the prosecutor's premises adjoining the tank on the Mazagon.

As no case either of violence or possession was established against four of the Mahomedan defendants his Worship at once discharged them; but convicted Mahomed Jaffer bin Shaik Hyder of having committed a forcible entry.

His Worship in sentenced Mahomed Jaffer to a fine of fifty rupees.

Friday, 30th October 1863.

Whipping versus Imprisonment.—A young Mahomedan was yesterday placed at the bar for having stolen on the night of Thursday last an iron beam of a large pair of scales. The prisoner unhesitatingly admitted his guilt; and his Worship observed that the same channel as for the Home Service.

NORTH-WEST PROVINCES.

Mr. F. H. Cooper, C.B., has resumed the duties of Deputy Commissioner of Delhi, and Mr. Thornton has taken charge of the Court of Small Causes, to which he was recently appointed.—Lahore Chronicle, Oct. 2.

We have received information of the force under Brigadier General Sir Neville Chamberlain which marched on the night of the 19th, from Nowa Vala, and was to enter the Chumba valley by the Umbeylah pass, and would be at Koja on the 20th.

Another column accompanied by the Commissioner of Peshawur, Lieutenant-Colonel Taylor, C. B., was to leave Murdan, the Guide fort in the Eusufzie, about the same time and will we fancy, enter the Hills by Naringee and Mungultarah thereby dividing them from the tribes to the North West of the Mahaban Range. A force under Major Coxe, Deputy Commissioner Hozara, is we understand, watching the ferries on the Indus above Torbela. and will, we hope, effectually prevent the fanatics from escaping into Huzara.

Proclamations have been sent to the Bonairwalls and to the Mahaban tribes probably to explain the cause of so large a force being sent into the Hills, and no doubt warning them to avoid casting their lot in with the Sitana fanatics.—Id.

LAW.

HIGH COURT.—APPELLATE SIDE.

(Thursday, 22nd October, 1863.)

Before the Hon'ble Mr. Justice Erskine, Mr. Justice Westropp and Mr. Justice Tucker.

Murder.—Shetya Vullud Tinna was tried before the Hon'ble G. A. Hobart, Session Judge of Sholapore, for having committeed the murder of a little girl named Dundowa; on the fifth day of July 1863. The following is the Session Judge's finding on the evidence:—That Dundowa's body was found partially buried under earth and stones in the dry bed of a Nullah at Taranal; that there was a severe fracture on the top of the head, and other less serious wounds on other parts of it, that there were gold ear-rings, one in each ear, one goldring in the nose, and a gold mungulsootur suspended round the neck; and that there were no other ornaments on the corpse, is shewn by the evidence of Dewopa, Bhemapa, Mullupa and by the Inquest Report, as to the execution of which, proof is given by Eerguntya. That Dundowa was in the habit of wearing these ornaments, and in addition a gold ornament called phool on the forehead, is shewn by Dewapa; and that on the morning of that day she wore all these ornaments, is shewn by his evidence, taken together with that of Soorgowa, Eurowa and Somowa. That prisoner was seen in company with Dundowa on that day, is shewn by the evidence of the three last mentioned witnesses; and it does not appear that she has been seen alive since. It then appears that the same evening prisoner was apprehended at Dawngli where he was drinking shendi. It is said above that these points are shewn by certain evidence for the prosecution, because the evidence on these points is overwhelmed and is not contradicted by evidence for the defence. There is the following very inculpatory evidence: Saiba deposes that when he apprehended prisoner at Dawngli, he was wearing a Dhotur which was wet with water, and had the appearance of blood having been washed out of it, that there were spots of blood on the Cholna prisoner was wearing, and that consequent on something prisoner had said, one Eelgoodi was questioned about the phool, and after some denial, this Eelgoodi promised to shew where it was, and that Eelgoodi took the police to the house of one Luxamon at Taranal and produced from under a stone in the ground near the door of the house the crushed bit of gold in evidence. Luxamon deposes that he saw Eelgoodi dig up this bit of crushed gold in that place. The bit of gold produced is not clearly too large to have formed the ornament called a phool, and Dewapa deposes that, from some engraving on it, he believes it to be that which deceased Dundowa had on, on the day of her murder. Eelgoodi deposes that at about 4 o'clock P.M. of the day on the evening of which prisoner was apprehended, he (prisoner) had come to Luxamon's where he was, and there he washed his Dhotur and his hands, and presently after, he, Eelgoodi and Luxamon went together to Dawngli (which Saiba says is only 4 Kos distant from Taranal) and drank Shendi together, and there prisoner, calling him aside, offered to pawn the bit of crushed gold to him for five annas, which he agreed to, and when prisoner was that night apprehended and questions were asked about Dundowa's murder, and about a phool she wore, he was afraid and hid the bit of gold under a stone at Luxamon's, whence he subsequently produced it. Prisoner denies that he made over Dundowa's phool to Eelgoodi. He says he did not wash his Dhotur in Eelgoodi's presence; that it was not wet when he was apprehended, that the marks supposed to be of blood on his dhotur were Goolal stains, which were from Goolal used last Mohorum, that the blood on his Cholna, if there was any, was from his having been beaten while in custody, or may have been caused by chips of stone flying off and wounding him while he was cutting stone, which is his trade, or, perhaps from the juice of some tree; that if he had taken Dundowa's phool, why did he not take other ornaments she had besides? That Eelgoodi is too much interested to accuse another; the crushed bit of gold having been found in his possession to be worthy of belief; that, moreover, his evidence is quite contradicted by what he stated before the Magistrate; but it is quite clear from Saiba's evidence and Eelgoodi's which derives corroboration from Bhimapa's that prisoner's dhotur was wet when he was apprehended. The blood on the Cholna is unsatisfactorily accounted for, for, there is no evidence of his having been beaten while in custody. It is unlikely that chips of stones should fly out with such force as draw blood from his body where the Cholna covers it, and it is a mere unfounded and not very reasonable assertion that the juice of a tree might have produced the reddish black spots still visible on his Cholna. It is not at all improbable that, if he killed Dundawa before he stole the phool from her, horror at the deed, or fear of discovery, if he delayed to dispose at once of the body, might have induced him to remove no more ornaments. It must be admitted that Eelgoodi was interested to explain away his possession of the bit of crushed gold, when he admitted possession, and to deny possession perhaps at first, and it is clear from the deposition recorded No. 10 that he denied possession at first, a denial he has subsequently retracted, yet, this conduct, his denial and retraction as to possession which latter was true, does not seem to invalidate his testimony. When at first questioned about the phool what more likely than that, though innocent of the murder, the enquiry made about it as the murdered Dundowa's should induce him to deny that he had the bit of crushed gold, which he might at once see might have been such an ornament. Then putting aside the supposition that Eelgoodi was the murderer, and he certainly does seem to have acted in a manner quite consistent with the supposition of his innocence, the inference derivable from the fact of the deceased's body being found without the phool, namely, that the person who murdered her stole the phool is very corroborative of his evidence that prisoner made over the bit of crushed gold to him, and goes far to connect prisoner with murder, when here is prisoner found very shortly after having been seen with deceased with blood on his Cholna, a dhotur wet (so says the evidence and there is no reason to distrust it) facts he does not satisfactorily account for, and a bit of crushed gold in Eelgoodi's possession which might have been the phool belonging to deceased Dundowa. This string of circumstances, induces the belief that prisoner certainly did, as Eelgoodi says, pawn the bit of crushed gold to him, and especially as prisoner does not otherwise explain how he got this gold that he must have stolen it from Dundowa, murdering her, as above said, on the occasion of his stealing it. At the same time it should be recorded that if there is reason to discredit Eelgoodi's evidence (which the court, for the above reasons, believes true,) there remains against prisoner only these two facts that he was seen with deceased a few hours only before her death, and that about the time of her death he was found with blood on his clothes. The assessor present considers prisoner not guilty; but only because no one saw him kill deceased. The circumstantial and other evidence above analysed induces the court to think otherwise and contrary to be proved. Therefore, the court, differing from the assessor present finds that Shetya Vullud Tenna is found guilty of the offence specified in the charge, namely, that Shetya Vullud Tinna has committed the offence of murder and has thereby committed an offence punishable under Sec: 302 of the Penal Code; and the court directs that the said Shetya Vullud Tinna be hanged by the neck until he be dead. This sentence being subject to the confirmation of the Hon'ble Judges of the High Court of Jndicature at Bombay.

Resolution of the High Court.—The conviction and sentence are confirmed.

The Session Judge to be informed that merely having business in the Moonsiff's Court, does not appear a sufficient cause under Section 353 of the Code of criminal Procedure refusing in a case of this nature for allowing one of the assessors to be absent during the trial of the case.

The session Judge is also to be informed that in some instance the witnesses appear to have been children, whose ages are simply entered as unknown, without any indication of what the Session Judge thought their ages might be.

Against this conviction and sentence the prisoner appealed to the Judges of the High Court, but their Lordships rejected the petition.

THE INDIAN MEDICAL STAFF CORPS

1. The existing Medical Services at each Presidency to remain in distinct as at present.

All medical officers now in the Service to have the advantages offered in the new corps as respects increased pay, promotion, and pensions.

2. All Assistant-Surgeons of 12 years' standing to be at once promoted to Surgeons, subject to certain conditions of military duty and examination; and hereafter Assistant-Surgeons to be similarly promoted.

3. There are to be fixed rates of pay in all Staff appointments, but without batta. Regimental charges to carry batta.

4. All present rates of double staff to be continued, but the Principal Inspector Generalship to be abolished. One Inspector General of Hospitals to be allowed to each Presidency.

Deputy Inspector Generalships to be itenerant appointments to be held only for five years, but eligible to be re-appointed.

5. The Medical Funds as they stood when the Service passed to the Crown are to be continued, and the Annuities originally sanctioned to be acknowledged. (The subject of pensions for families, for medical officers entering the Service, to be considered along with that for the combative staff.)

6. Inspectors General of Hospitals, and Deputy Inspectors General, who have served 5 years as such in Indian, to be entitled to the pensions of their respective ranks.

7. Six months of the above five years may be passed upon medical certificate (out of India). At the expiration of five years, unless reappointed, Inspectors General and Deputy Inspectors General will only receive Indian pay for six months, and after that time will revert to furlough pay.

8. Ages, when retirement from the Service is imperative, fixed at 65 for administrative, and 55 for all other officers.

THE WAR IN AMERICA.

(To the Editor of the Times, Sept. 19.)

Sir,—The American war is assuming a phase of which the world at large has no conception. The chief sources to which neutrals look for information concerning that war is the newspaper press of the North, which is one-sided at best. In some respects they know little of what is going on there.

The people on this side of the water have, indeed, heard something of the brutalities of Butler in New Orleans, the butcheries of M'Neil in Missouri, the savage barbarities of Turchin in Alabama, the Greek fire of Gilmore in Charleston, the "wiping out" of Yazoo city, in Mississippi, and other outrages against humanity which, in certain high quarters have already been upheld with the word "infamous." But these are not all.

The versions which people on this side of the water have received, even of these affairs, are tinged with the well-known Yankee colouring; and it is scarcely to be expected that neutrals can get the whole truth from that quarter.

Northern accounts and Northern versions of all the events of the war that the Yankees choose to make known, and there are some so dark that even they dare not confess, are sped by steam and lightning across the Atlantic and spread over the realm and the continent, as rapidly as the telegraph, the press, the mails, and the carriers can spread the news of the day. On the other hand, Southern accounts of the same event like, truth, travel slowly. Our journals, if they ever reach England at all, reach only after the news has become stale; and few, indeed, are the Europeans, or the reading rooms, that receive reglar files of any Southern journal. The consequence is that all that is know abroad as to current events in America is, as I have said, derived chiefly from Northern sources, and are therefore, one-sided.

One-sided statements, the law considers, should never be implicitly relied on, even when made by parties of undoubted integrity and unchallenged veracity. Much less, then considering the proof that the world has had of Yankee truthfulness, should these one-sided statements be accepted as the whole truth and nothing but the truth.

By recent letters from my own family and friends in the south, I have been startled, notwithstanding what I knew before, at this new phases of the war, and the growing enormity of Yankee outrages.

The war party of the North—the Exterminators as they are, even there, sometimes called—have determined to impart to the war a still more savage character even than that which has hitherto marked it.

At the date of these letters—none later than July—our people who had been relieved by Ewell from Federal rule in Winchester under Milroy were arriving in Richmond,
